HOW TO READ THE SKILL KITS

This is a proposed design blueprint derived from the original character visuals supplied in this conversation. It does not claim that abilities, game rules or cooldowns are already coded.

DEFAULT INPUTS

Basic = mouse/touch attack; Q and E = active skills; R = ultimate. Controllers and mobile controls can be remapped.

COOLDOWN FORMAT

Q / 12s means the ability is available again 12 seconds after activation. All timings are starter playtest numbers.

BALANCE PIPS

Mobility, Damage, Defense and Utility are relative 1-5 design indicators, not final damage multipliers or stats.

SKIN VS CLASS

A character skin can be cosmetic only in fair PvP; use the listed abilities as optional class kits for co-op or class-based modes.

ENEMY READABILITY

The tell occurs before a damaging attack. Bosses have clearly staged phases and counterplay; do not make effects obscure silhouettes.

COMPANIONS & NPCS

Utility pets, mounts and traders should not become pay-to-win advantages in competitive multiplayer.

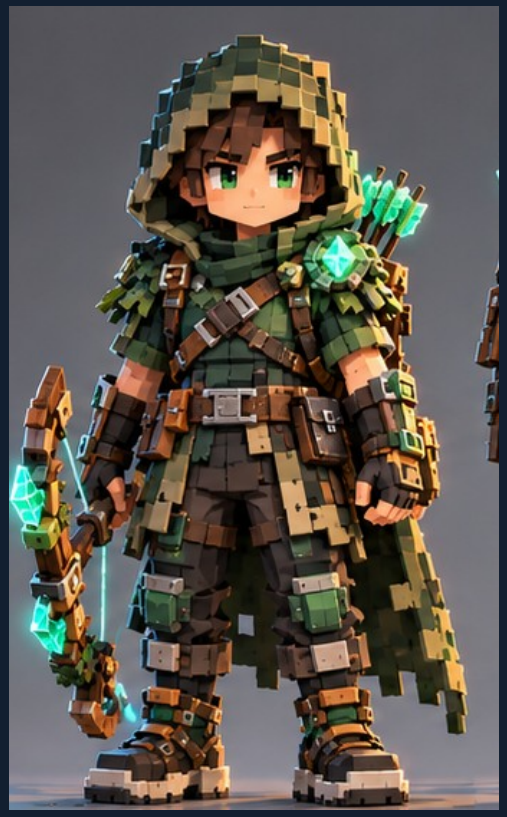

QUICK ROLE MATRIX

Use material atlases, sensible LODs, pooled VFX, low-poly silhouettes, limited transparent effects, and compact skinned meshes.

ACCESSIBILITY

Do not rely solely on color: pair glows with distinct animations and sound cues. Remap abilities for keyboard, controller and touch.

PVP FAIRNESS

For fair multiplayer, normalize hitboxes and movement. Offer purely cosmetic skins or role-based skill selection that is available to all players.

PLAYTEST METRICS

Track ability pick rate, hit rate, time-to-kill, escape success, boss wipe causes, revive rate and frame times before locking cooldowns.
